Third work of Willard's institution, extended on the subject of protecting an independent North American empire, by protecting its iron for independent dwellings, storehouses, factories, and other American arts. And by protecting its national school fund for the uniform education of its children in support of an independent national republic. Against the increasing usurpation of the British iron monarchy controlling sectarian partizanism deceitfully pretending to be under the pope of Rome and Roman Catholic leading arch bishops in all American countries. "The 'Book of figures' is a little manuscript that has recently been presented to the Newberry library by the librarian. The book appears to be a guide such as would be used by a fiddler or other musician in calling off the successive movements of dances. It was found some years ago in the attic of an old house in one of the smaller towns in Hartford County, Connecticut."—Foreword.

Williams, Aaron, 1731–1776.

The American harmony, or Universal psalmodist. Containing a choice and valuable collection of psalm and hymn-tunes; canons and anthems; with words adapted to each tune. The whole composed in a new and easy taste, for two, three and four voices; in the most familiar keys and clifts:—calculated to promote and improve this most excellent part of social worship; and render it both useful and delightful; in quires, as well as in congregations in the country. By A. Williams, teacher of psalmody, in London. To which is added, a variety of favourite hymn tunes and anthems; collected from the Williams, Daniel, 1643?–1716.

A defence of gospel-truth. Being a reply to Mr. Chaney's first part. And as an explication of the points in debate, may serve for a reply to all other answers. Wherein the mistaken may at least see that, I. I affirm that we are justified for or by Christ righteousness alone, and not by works. II. That we are justified as soon as we truly believe. III. That the righteousness of Christ is imputed to the believer, and not only the effects of it, &c. IV. That gospel-conditions are not our justifying righteousness, which legal works were to be, &c. V. How the gospel is a law, explained and proved, &c. VI. That I am not for the popish or Arminian doctrine of justification, &c. as

D'Artagnan, the king maker; an historical novel, by Alexandre Dumas ... tr. by Henry L. Williams. New York, Street & Smith [1901]

2 p. l., iii, [9]–308 p. front., plates. 19cm.

Stated by the publishers to be based upon Dumas' comedy "L'envers d'une conspiration". Apart from a few scenes and phrases, the story has little in common with the play, the subject of the latter being the restoration of Charles II of England, whereas the story relates the accession of Juan de Braganza to the throne of Portugal by the help of Artagnan and Porthos.

[Williams, Roger, 1604?–1683. The blovdy tenent ... 1644. (Card 2)

The "Scriptures and reasons" (p. 1–6) is a part—the 6th–9th chapters—of a work printed in 1620, entitled "A most humble supplication of the King's Majesty's loyal subjects, ready to testify all civil obedience ..." signed by "Your Majesty's loyal subjects unjustly called Anabaptists", a work attributed to John Murton. The "Model of church and civil power" "examined and answered" in the last fifty-six chapters, is probably not that ascribed to Richard Mather, but an earlier one, never printed, drawn up in accordance with the Act of the General court, March 4, 1634, "by the elders and brethern of every church within this jurisdiction". cf. The bloody tenent of persecution, ed. by S. L. Caldwell. Providence, 1867; and O. S. Straus, Roger Williams. New York, 1894.

Williamson, Peter, 1730–1799.

Authentic narrative of the life and surprising adventures of Peter Williamson, who was kidnapped when an infant, from his native place, Aberdeen, and sold for a slave in America: his marriage, perils, hardships, and escapes; and his great services to the English interest, by his intimate acquaintance with the Indian language and manners. Written by himself at intervals, and published at his coffee-room, in Edinburgh. Albany: Printed by H. C. Southwick. 1813.
